

Lesson plan:

Photo Challenge

Beauty is in the eye of the beholder.

Why?

If you see the beauty of nature, you will become more keen to protect it.

We all see different things. We all see things differently.

This assignment will help students understand that we are all unique and are allowed to have different opinions about beauty. This assignment also lets students practice to motivate their opinion and listen to others. They will also have the opportunity to see and experience the beauty of nature.

Where?

Outdoors in nature.

You could combine it with another activity outdoors, maybe a nature walk.

How?

This could be an assignment that the students do individually or in small groups. If you do it in groups they also practise communicating and getting along with each other, when they have to agree on an object to photograph. All students or groups need to have something to take their picture with, tablet or a mobile phone.

Tell the students to look around themselves when they are outdoors, take in the beauty of nature.

They will then take pictures of the things they find appealing.

In the classroom make your students choose one of their photos. They should also write a caption or name it and put it on display somehow. It could be a joint presentation or they can print it out. Motivate why you chose this photo, this could be written or spoken.

Then have an exhibition. Everyone takes a look at all the friends' photos. Have discussions in the class; Highlight the differences and similarities, that all pictures are different (hopefully)..

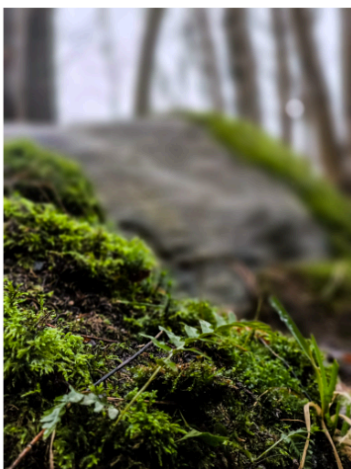

Then try to agree on which are the best photo? Vote or have an open discussion about it. Make sure that everyone has a say. You can also make them motivate why they vote on which photo.

Hopefully this assignment also shows that you can change your own opinion when you get more information or when you see things from another person's point of view.
